City may tighten rules for local gun & ammo sales

■ Gun business owners say new rules are acceptable

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's planning commission on June 19 approved a tightening of the permitted locations for gun shops in the city. But those restrictions were made with the approval of a couple of gun-related local business owners.

As David Tilley, the city's principal planner, told the commission members:

"We are proposing that they become a 'conditional use' in our business park, limited industrial, light industrial and heavy industrial zones, and that we take them out of our community commercial, central business district, waterfront and mixed-use zones."

(Comments here are taken from the City of West Sacramento's video of the meeting.)

As a "conditional use" in any of these zones, gun and ammo sales would need city approval on a case-by-case basis.

Lieutenant David Delaini of the West Sacramento Police Department expressed his support for the changes.

One of two people in the local firearms trade to speak at the public hearing was Brent Dawson, who described himself as a disabled veteran and business owner of American Tactical Outfitters. That business was formerly on Northport Drive in an industrial part of West Sacramento.

Dawson said he had used to operate under the rules of a firearms "broker" – with

Raley's explains changes to West Sac supermarket

New administrative offices at south side of West Sac's Raley's
(News-Ledger photo)

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A couple of readers asked the News-Ledger what's behind the recent changes to the Raley's supermarket in downtown West Sacramento. The store recently reduced its retail space.

Corporate spokeswoman Nicole Townsend explained in an email that the supermarket at 1601 West Capitol avenue has gone from 33,704 square feet of display space to 24,343 square feet. Meanwhile, the supermarket acquired 12,400 square feet of administrative offices that had been housed down the street near corporate headquarters.

Can the supermarket remain competitive with less shelf space?

"Yes," answered Townsend. "We only reduced space after first considering our customers and their needs. The reduction actually makes the store more 'shoppable,' by optimizing space and integrating products to provide customers with the products they want and more."

The chain is headquartered in West Sacramento at 500 West Capitol Avenue, and it includes Bel Air, Nob Hill Foods and Food Source stores as well as Raley's. The corporate offices now at the supermarket site came from an annex near the headquarters. The lease was ending at that "Raley's West" building, said Townsend.

While creating the new offices at the south end of the market, the store didn't expand its footprint, according to Townsend.

The store's retail employees are union members, Townsend said.

Also in West Sacramento are a Safeway supermarket, Nugget supermarket and a Wal-Mart "superstore" whose merchandise includes groceries, as well as several smaller markets.

Yolo County's property values rebound to record high

Yolo County's property assessment roll has topped $21 billion for the first time, reports county assessor Joel Butler.

"The improving real estate market and thriving agricultural economy, coupled with new construction and (reassessment due to) changes in ownership" are responsible for lifting the value 6.56 percent this year, to $21.8 billion, he said. City by city:

Woodland's assessed values increased by 9.47 percent, West Sacramento's by 7.14 percent, Winters by 6.15 percent and Davis by 4.49 percent. The unincorporated parts of Yolo County grew in value by 6.11 percent.

Individual property values are now available at the Yolo County website at www.yolocounty.org/assessor. Make sure to have your street address or Assessor Parcel Number handy to look up your vlaue.

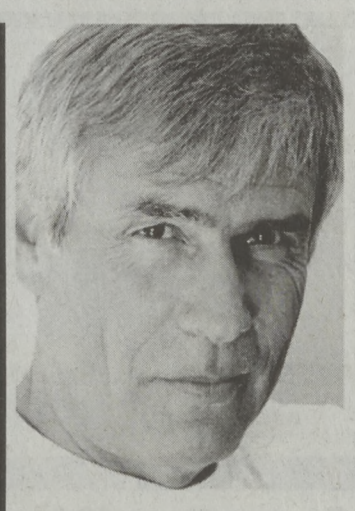
Taking some chances on a dark desert night

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

About six years ago I went on a long road trip to St. Louis, Missouri and back, and it didn't take me long to get sick and tired of spending the nights in lonely motels and inns. They were always too expensive, never seemed to have a good view (sometimes they didn't even have a window), and they either reeked of cigarette smoke or harsh cleaning chemicals (or both). So, by the time I reached Salt Lake City on my return home, I had definitely had enough of dragging my road-weary self and all my belongings in and out of boring, lonely, smelly hotel rooms.

It was just past 10 p.m. when I finally motored my little truck all the way down from the high and rugged mountains which surround the eastern side of Salt Lake City. The seemingly endless descent was a beautiful sight to behold, with the valley floor that supports Salt Lake City sparkling with countless city lights for as far as the eye could see. But rather than pull into yet another parking lot of yet another yucky hotel, I decided to just go ahead and drive through the huge, sprawling city and out into the peace and quiet of the Great Salt Lake Desert. Not only would that get me closer to home, but I figured it wouldn't be too long before I came across another one of those rest areas which had dotted Highway 80 every 50 miles or so ever since I had been on it. By the time I finally found one, however, it was almost midnight and I was glad that I had at least had the good sense to fill up my gas tank before I left Salt Lake City.

The plan was simple. I would just pull into the rest area, turn off the lights and the engine, sprawl out in the front seat of my truck, and call it a night. It only took me a few minutes, however, to realize that my little plan would have to undergo a few much-needed upgrades. To begin with, having never tried to sleep in my truck before, it soon became very apparent to me that there was no possible way anyone other than a child or a contortionist could "sprawl out" in the front seat (it has no back seat). I tried any number of positions, but each and every one of them ended up with some part of my body crying out for help. I did come close once, but it required sleeping on my side in the fetal position with my backside being dangerously exposed to the gear shift should I have a bad dream, so I decided my only real option was to try to get some sleep while sitting up behind the steering wheel. That worked for awhile, in the sense that I did nod off for a few minutes, but when I quickly found myself awake again, there was yet another problem to deal with – I was sweating like a pig!

I had locked both of my doors and rolled up all the windows just before I closed my eyes, somehow forgetting that I was out in the Great Salt Lake Desert in the middle of the summer, and although it was past midnight, it was still mighty hot outside. So, since I couldn't sleep, I decided to get out of my truck and stretch my legs a little bit by strolling up to the rest area's bathroom. And it was there that I encountered a man I'll call Big Ed, a very friendly and talkative truck driver who was just about to call it a night himself.

"That your little truck out in front?" asked Big Ed.

"Yeah," I answered.

"I thought I saw you in it -- you spending the night here, too?" asked Big Ed, whose giant rig (with no doubt a spacious sleeping area inside it) was parked out back of the restroom which we found ourselves sharing.

"That's the plan," I said. "I'm on my way back to California and I figured I would sleep a couple of hours in my truck and then get a real early start tomorrow morning. With a little luck, I think I can make it all the way home by late tomorrow night."

And then I found out that not only was Big Ed friendly and chatty, he was also an expert on rest area crime statistics and desert rattlesnakes.

"Well," said Big Ed, "I'm on this road a couple of times most every week and if you want some friendly advice, sleeping all by yourself in that little truck of yours in a rest area out in the middle of this desert probably ain't .the smartest thing you'll ever do in this lifetime."

"How so?" I asked with interest.

"Well," explained Ed, almost with delight over getting a chance to further ruin my night, "there are some pretty bad characters that pass through these rest areas in the middle of the night, and they've been known to rob and shoot people in the process – sometimes just for the hell of it. In fact, some of them are on drugs and just plain nuts. Plus this area is really heavy in rattlesnakes and they've been known to find ways to get right inside of a little truck like yours. Oh, and you sure don't want to be getting up in the middle of the night to take a pee behind those bushes near your truck cause I guarantee you there's whole families of huge rattlers nesting in some of those things."

Since I couldn't sleep, I decided to get out of my truck and stretch my legs a little bit by strolling up to the rest area's bathroom. And it was there that I encountered a man I'll call 'Big Ed,' a very friendly and talkative truck driver who was just about to call it a night himself.

On my way back to my truck, I wasn't quite sure if Big Ed had been jerking my chain or just trying to be helpful, but what the heck, like Camus once said, "Life, the real living of it, belongs to those who are willing to risk," so instead of returning to my suffocating, upright sleeping-not position behind the wheel of my truck, I made myself up a nice little sleeping area in the bed of my truck, sprawled out to my heart's delight, and fell asleep looking up at more stars than a person could ever possibly count. And best of all, when I awoke to one of the most beautiful sunrises I have ever seen, there wasn't a deranged highwayman or angry rattlesnake anywhere in sight, reminding me once more that life is never as scary as we think it is, and that the real fun of living comes when we are not playing by all the rules.

with no gun inventory on hand. He's now seeking a larger location that would, in part, sell guns it kept in stock. Dawson said the new zoning seems to give him enough real estate options to find such a location.

State and federal governments already "regulate all aspects" of firearm sales, said Dawson, before voicing his support for the new zoning rules.

Dawson raised concerns that another West Sacramento business – Aim U Nation, in an industrial part of Southport – may not be in compliance with city rules. As a stand-alone retail shop that sells guns, ammo and other things, the business may not qualify as one that sells firearms only as an "accessory use" as listed.

Ken Garrett, an owner of Aim U Nation and the separate All Phase Security business, was on hand at the meeting. He said that he, too, supported the proposed zoning changes. He told the commission that his business "may not be in compliance," but "we're willing to take steps now."

Planner David Tilley said the new zoning rules may clarify things and "provide a path" for Aim U Nation to solve any local licensing trouble.

Several planning commission members had comments on the issue before they voted.

Commissioner Russ Leibig gave an "aside" about Aim U Nation:

"I have a hard time seeing (firearms) as an accessory use today," he said. "Especially with the ad that's in even our local paper today, the primary use seems to be firearms sales, ammunition sales, and then training. . . Moving forward, maybe we can get them into this permitting process and in compliance."

Commission member Jeremy Olsen wondered if the zoning was too strict – never allowing firearms sales as an automatically "permitted" use, and always requiring city approval of a "conditional use" permit:

"There's no zoning designation here where it's not 'conditional,'" said Olsen. "If a Cabela's or large retailer was looking to site a retail location in our town, I'm afraid they would look at it and get the wrong idea."

Colleague Charlie Moore talked about Aim U Nation's possible need to get into city compliance, saying "I'm just trying to make sure we're not putting somebody out of business."

Tilley assured Olsen that only the gun-related portion of a Cabala's store would need a conditional use permit, and told Moore staff was communicating with Aim U Nation and trying to help that business work within the rules.

The commission approved the proposed zoning changes, and the matter will now head to the city council.

School bond skeptic

RE: "West Sac voters will face $49.8 million school bond," News-Ledger, July 2:

I wonder if the $100 million (plus or minus) spent of the exquisite new high school had been partially used to upgrade the already deplorable schools in the north area, if we would be asked for such a large amount of money today. It does no good to have a fancy high school with such a large portion of the feeder schools in long term rotten condition. It does no good for a whole community, and their children, to have such clear evidence of their relative value in our town.

It seems to me that without a strictly structured, prioritized list of objectives this is a bad deal both for the schools and the property owners. Ms Villegas who "literally ran that high school bond" seems not to remember that the project was overly ambitious, and ran over by nearly double it's budget. That project was badly planned and badly run, and the current proposal promises nothing more than the same. Schools in Broderick and Bryte have been sadly neglected for decades, and much in need of repairs and updating. They weren't so good when my daughter attended Alyce Norman nearly 40 years ago.

If offered clearly ordered listed projects, specifically ranked, only for the schools where the students and facilities have been most neglected, I gladly support and campaign for a bond measure. It must contain language insuring that such guidelines are met, with clear accountability, and consequences for stepping beyond the prescribed goals.

Otherwise I'll campaign against it. We cannot afford double that cost, we cannot afford to once again throw expensive goodies towards the wealthier parts of our community to the detriment of folks on the north side of town.

Frankly, I do not trust the school board as a whole (individuals excepted).

Two officers in a patrol car saw a 34-year old homeless man who "appeared lost" in an industrial area. As they drew to a stop, the man waved them down.

The man "apologized for being in the area (and) said he was looking for a friend. He consented to a pat-search, and said he was on parole.

An officer cuffed him and searched him, finding a glass pipe in one pocket of his jeans and a baggie with 0.79 grams of methamphetamine in another. The man's parole office placed a "hold" on him, and he went to jail.

July 5, 9:02 p.m.

Police received several fireworks complaints beginning at this time, including calls from Olive Court, Sherman Island Road and Perkins Road.

July 5, 8:05 p.m.

A patrolling officer saw illegal "aerial fireworks" going off on the 500-block of North Harbor Blvd. He contacted an apartment, where "they provided me with four small bottle rockets." The officer did not see who shot off the fireworks, and no arrest was made.

July 5, 8:30 p.m.

Police responded to a Riverpoint Court retail store where an 18-year old man from Douglas Street was being detained. A loss prevention officer at the store told a police officer that the man and three accomplices had tried to steal $1013 worth of items. The other three got away.

"I advised (the suspect) of his Miranda rights," reported an officer, "which he told me he understood. (He) then told me he had been drinking alcohol with friends at the river when he came up with a 'stupid idea' to go to WalMart and steal merchandise that he could later sell to buy more alcohol."

July 5, 1:57 p.m.

A north-city woman reported that her boyfriend had "used a sharpened piece of plastic that he obtained from a broken container to cut her several times on her right forearm" during an argument. A responding officer noted several visible cuts on the arm, as well as some scratches on her chest that she attributed to the man "swinging his hands at her."

The man went to jail.

July 6, 2:25 p.m.

Police responded to another north-area domestic violence incident and spotted a man "matching the suspect's description" leaving the scene. The 30-year old ran several blocks before he was located hiding in a backyard.

The suspect turned out not to be the same one involved in the domestic violence call. But he was on parole, and the parole office asked for him to be jailed.

July 6, 8:30 p.m.

Police responded to a call at a Lake Washington Boulevard shopping center, finding a 34-year old man from Santa Lucia Place sitting in the driver's seat of a running car. The man failed a field sobriety test, admitting to recently having some "oysters and beer."

He went to jail on drunk driving charges.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Transcendence" (PG-13) -- Could our reliance on technology harm us? What if Johnny Depp became the all-powerful personification of the Internet? These are the questions "Transcendence," a talk-heavy sci-fi thriller, tries to answer.

Dr. Will Caster (Depp) is working to build a computer-thingy that connects to all of mankind's techno-stuff. Folks call him a lunatic, and some radicals shoot him. His loving, genius wife (Rebecca Hall) puts Dr. Caster's dying mind into an extra-big computer, making him the all-knowing techno-lord he was working on. This does not go well for mankind.

Debut-director Wally Pfister is known for his work as a cinematographer -- crafting intense visual sequences in "Inception" and the new Batman movies. He brings that same visual strength to parts of "Transcendence," but it doesn't make a satisfying flick. Depp's performance is so detached that he's not much fun to watch or listen to.

"Sabotage" (R) -- Arnold Schwarzenegger rampages through this hyper-violent criminal action flick. The Big Guy leads nine tough-as-nails DEA agents on a drug raid where they find a big ol' stack of money. They're all pretty crooked, so they agree to skim a few million dollars for themselves. Soon, members of the morally corrupt crew turn up viciously murdered. Is it the drug cartel's revenge, or one of their own? Everyone is a suspect! Everyone also is heavily armed and full of rage.

Even fans of shoot'em-up revenge flicks could find this movie too fixated on up-close nastiness and torment. Rent it only if you wish to see Arnold hulk-out once more.

"Make Your Move" (PG-13) -- Donny (Derek Hough of "Dancing with the Stars") is a street-wise dancer from New Orleans, just making his appearance on the Brooklyn club scene. He has an impromptu and electric dance on top of a bar with Aya (Korean pop-star BoA), a beautiful hip-hop dancer with an overprotective brother. They fall in love and have a series of romantically charged dance sequences. The writing is skimmed from various soap operas, and all of the expected love story tropes are included.

"The Human Race" (R) -- A group of strangers find themselves trapped in an abandoned detention center, when a voice in their heads tells them they are in a deadly race. Straying from the path, stepping on the grass, or getting lapped twice by another runner all result in instant death via head explosion. Among the contestants are two veterans -- one missing a leg -- two friends who are deaf, and a cyclist who's quick to outdo people in the race against death. This survival-horror movie sprang forth with almost no budget, and has many faults. Still, it can provide some unexpected thrills.

"The Phantom of Fifth Avenue: The Mysterious Life and Scandalous Death of Heiress Huguette Clark"
by Meryl Gordon
(Grand Central Publishing, $28)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Huguette Clark was raised in the most expensive home in America, inherited a fortune at age 18 and lived be 104, but because she shunned publicity for most of her adult life, little was known about her.

Now, after numerous interviews and a treasure trove of more than 70 boxes of archival materials recovered from her living quarters, journalist Meryl Gordon unlocks the mystery that was Huguette Clark.

Huguette was born in 1906 in Paris, the daughter of Anna and William Andrews Clark. She was raised in her family's 121-room Beaux Arts mansion, the largest private residence in Manhattan. During the 1870s, William Clark discovered rich copper veins in Butte, Mont., and his operations soon were producing 8 million pounds of copper each month. He scoffed at the pollution triggered by his mines and even claimed that women appreciated the arsenic in the air in Butte, since it gave their complexions a rosy color.

In 1925, Clark died of pneumonia, and 18-year-old Huguette inherited his fortune. One of Clark's last words of advice to his daughter was not to trust anyone, since she would only be loved for her money. The heiress made her debut in 1926, and despite her father's warning, married an accountant, but divorced him the following year.

The last public photograph of Huguette was taken on her honeymoon.

Huguette became eccentric and reclusive during the last half-century of her life. Even though she had several properties, including a 42-room apartment on New York's Fifth Avenue, an oceanside estate in Santa Barbara, Calif., and a 22-room mansion in the woods of Connecticut, she checked into Beth Israel hospital in 1991, and remained there for the next two decades.

When she died in 2011 at the age of 104, the scramble was on to claim a part of her $300 million estate.

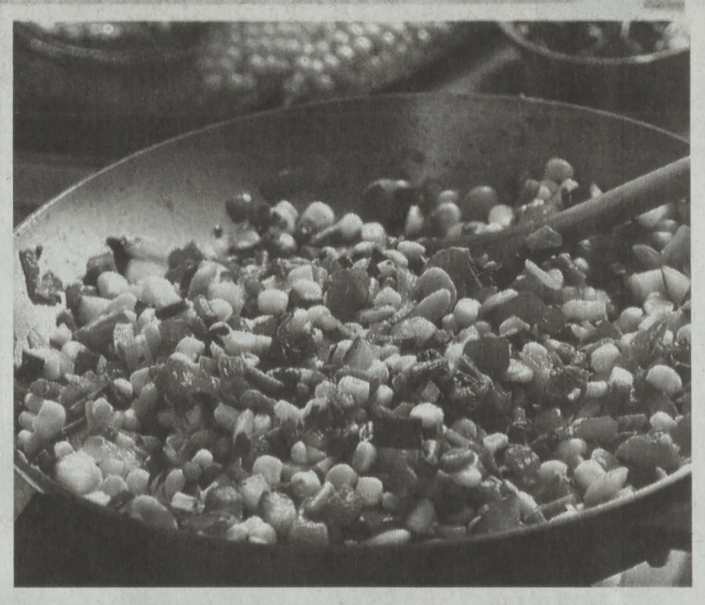
The Kitchen Diva BY Angela Shelf Medearis

World of Peas



While we are one big United States, the vastness and diversity of our country is most obvious in the food we eat. While we all salute the same flag, when it comes to food, we form smaller, ferociously loyal groups. Our culinary inheritance was granted to us by the distinct land that each of us calls home, and the place where we took our first bites.

There are certain foods that are native to a New Englander's dinner table -- food that for decades, even centuries, sustained a whole line of Pilgrims -- that someone from Colorado wouldn't consider eating. Historically, there were many good reasons for that.

Today, there are even more reasons to appreciate the different foods that are common to our particular part of the continent. Thanks to the farm-to-table movement, we are all coming to understand the true value of eating local, and cooking with what is available in our area.

If you are a Southerner, you've probably had more than one bowl of Purple Hull peas. They are a cultivar of a bigger family of Southern peas, or cow peas. Most people have heard of its more popular cousin, the black-eyed pea, even if they've never spent New Year's Day boiling up a pot flavored with a smoked ham hock. In the South, we also enjoy crowder peas, cream peas and the more exotic pink-eye. Many times, people from this region refer to the whole lot of them as "peas," which someone from the North would strongly disagree with.

It's all a little confusing, with so many similar types that are each slightly different from the other. Especially since all of them are not really peas by botanical definition, but beans. Peas also possess all the wonderful qualities of beans as a meatless source of protein and daily fiber.

It is believed that Southern peas were brought here from Africa and planted by plantation and farm owners as food for livestock. That's how black-eyed peas became known as cow peas.

Peas often are a confusing category of varieties that only Southerners truly understand. But in deep summer, all of these types of peas are available. Peas are so popular that there are festivals celebrating the harvest all over the South.

As with so many foods, though, what was once scorned is now craved. Folks who've grown up eating them covet fresh peas, which cook up in no time. But if you can't get fresh, then use the ones in the frozen vegetable section of your grocery. Whether fresh or frozen, they'll be delicious in my recipe for Southern Succotash.

SOUTHERN SUCCOTASH

This the perfect recipe to prepare in a slow-cooker! I love the addition of fresh or frozen okra at the end of the cooking time. If using fresh okra, don't cut the pods until right before adding them to the pot to prevent them from becoming slimy.

1 smoked ham hock (about 1 1/2 pounds) or 1 package of smoked turkey wings (about 1 1/2 pounds)
1 1/2 cups water or low-sodium chicken broth
1 can (28-ounces) diced tomatoes, undrained
2 cups fresh black-eyed peas or 1 (16-ounce) package black-eyed peas or crowder peas, thawed
2 cups fresh corn kernels or 1 package (10 ounces) frozen corn, thawed
1 1/2 cups fresh lima beans, shelled or 1 1/2 cups frozen lima beans, thawed
1 medium green pepper, seeded and chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
3 celery ribs, chopped
1/3 cup ketchup
2 tablespoons poultry seasoning
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon sugar, stevia or honey
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper or several dashes of hot sauce, to taste
1 bay leaf
1 cup sliced fresh or frozen, cut okra

In a Dutch oven or large, 5-quart slow cooker, add in ham hock or smoked turkey wings, tomatoes, fresh or frozen black-eyed peas, corn, lima beans, green pepper, onion, celery, ketchup, poultry seasoning, salt, paprika, pepper, sugar, cayenne pepper or hot sauce, and bay leaf, and stir to combine.

If using a Dutch oven, bring mixture to boil and immediately turn heat down to a simmer. Simmer, uncovered, for 45 minutes. Add okra and simmer, uncovered, for 15 minutes longer. Discard bay leaf before serving. Serves 12-16.

If using a slow cooker, cover and cook the mixture on HIGH for 4 to 6 hours. Add in the okra and cook on HIGH for another 20 minutes. Discard bay leaf before serving. Serves 12-16.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. The undersigned trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF WILLIAM DAVID TILLER
CASE NUMBER PB14-104

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of WILLIAM DAVID TILLER:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Carolyn Martin Tiller in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that John J. Pugh be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Aug. 19, 2014, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 2, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF ROBERT J.E. BROWN (CORRECTED)
CASE NUMBER PB14-105
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Robert J.E. Brown:
A Petition for Probate has been filed by Charles Terry Brown in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.
The Petition for Probate requests that Charles Terry Brown be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: July 30, 2014, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 2, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695, Probate Division.
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, this information can be obtained from one of the following two companies: LPS Agency Sales and Posting at (714) 730-2727, or visit the Internet Web site www.servicelinkASAP.com (Registration required to search for sale information) or Priority Posting and Publishing at (714) 573-1965 or visit the Internet Web site www.prioritypostng.com (Click on the link for "Advanced Search" to search for sale information), using the Trustee Sale No. shown above. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. Cooling centers

Need a cool spot to escape the summer heat? Too hot in your home? Three public "cooling centers" are available in town this summer. Water is available at all sites, but bringing a re-useable water bottle is advised.

The cooling centers are air-conditioned, so some people might find bringing a sweater to be a good idea. Comfortable seating is available. The locations are:

Arthur F. Turner Community Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue (10 am - 5:30 pm on Saturday, and 1 - 5 pm on Sunday. 916-375-6465)

West Sacramento Recreation Center, 2801 Jefferson Blvd. (next to River City High School M-F 5:15 am to 10:00 pm and Sat/Sun 8 am to 8 pm).

You may buy a rainbarrel kit from the chamber of commerce and pick it up at the market. The $35 kit includes a 55-gallon barrel and all the needed hardware to save water from your downspout.

Visit the "events" section at www.westscramentochamber.com.
